Market commentary
In the face of increasingly brutal terror attacks on US contractors by insurgents ahead of the June 30th handover of power in Iraq, the event that dominated the economic landscape was the June 29th Federal Open Market Commi (FOMC) meeting June's economic releases proved very supportive for the outlook of the recovery, and investors prepared for the first rate hike from the FOMC in nearly four years.

amer confidence strengthened during the month as surprisingly strong results came in well above expectations. The ISM manufacturing index rose to the highest level in two decades. The index's employment component increased to 61.9, its highest reading since 1973. Evidence of job creation continued as non-farm payrolls showed 248,000 new jobs were added in May, again outperforming economist's estimates. This report confirmed that the economy was in a broad-based recovery and the market continued the sell off which had began in previous months, even contemplating a possible 50bps rate hike in June. Bonds finally found relief, as the CP1 and PP1 indicated that inflation was still reasonably contained and the market rallied sharply. Weaker-thanexpected durable goods data also contributed to the rally and helped solidify market expectations.

ing approval for his fifth term as head of the central bank this month, Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan prepared the market for the first of a possible series of rate hikes. At its meeting, the Fed decided to raise interest rates by Share Class: CUSIP number 461473100

Yields fluctuate and are not guaranteed. The seven-day yield quotation more closely reflects the current earnings of the fund than the total return quotations. Yields would have been lower during the specified periods if certain of the fund's fees and expenses had not been waived. Without such waivers, the fund's 7-day yield would have been 0.58% and the 30-day yield would have been lower.

Recent and any future declines in interest rate levels could cause these funds' earnings to fall below the funds' expense ratio, resulting in a negative yield. The advisor has agreed to voluntarily waive expenses as necessary to maintain a positive yield. This waiver may be changed or terminated at any time without notice a quarter point to 1.25%. This highly anticipated move was well telegraphed. The Fed had echoed on numerous occasions a "measured" approach to tightening policy. As such the market had already priced in this 25bp hike. The focus was on the guidance the Fed would provide for the rest of the year. Its statement helped temper expectations when it reiterated that further increases will come at a measured pace, but gave heed that they would do what is necessary to "...maintain price stability." Typical of the Fed, this language appears to leave the door open should the committee need to respond more aggressively to changes in economic prospects.

As the money market curve continued to steepen in the first half of the month, we allowed our As the money market curve continued to steepen in the first half of the month, we allowed our portfolios to shorten their weighted average marunities. We maintained our strategy of purchasing floating rate notes, which would adjust as rates increased. In the latter half of the month, as the curve stabilized, we took the opportunity to make some longer purchases. Being careful not to over-extend ourselves, we were able to take advantage of some higher yields in the three to six month range. As the end of the month approached, an ample cash position was accumulated to meet any outflows due to the expected fluctuation associated with a Fed rate hike and month end.

Looking forward, we will continue to monitor the progress of economic data for an indication as to any change in policy. Job creation remains at center stage and strength in the non-farm payroll number will be one of the critical gauges of the economy's continued health and durability. However, inflation pressures will dictate the aggressiveness of any Fed tightening policy. We will continue to be calculated in our purchases out the curve while also decreasing our durations, which we expect will benefit from the steeper yield curve.

Economic Commentary

July 2004

Market Commentary

Prepared by Melissa Wright, Portfolio Manager, MBIA Asset Management Corp.

Greenspan Remains Positive on Economy

It is almost certain the Federal Open Market Committee (FOMC) will decide to raise the federal funds rate another 25 basis points to 1.50 percent when it meets on August 10. After a slew of disappointing economic data released recently, investors had begun pricing in the possibility the Fed might not raise rates 25 basis points at every meeting this year. Then, in Greenspan's semi-annual report to Congress, the Federal Reserve Chairman made it clear that risks are tilted towards growth and that disinflation is not a concern. In the second half of this year, the FOMC is likely to tighten interest rates by 25 basis points at each of the next four meetings in an effort to gradually raise rates to a more neutral level. Inflation risks at the moment seem to be under control, giving the Fed the ability to move gradually.

One of the risks to the current forecast includes higher than expected inflationary pressures. In the unlikely event that inflation rises higher than forecast, the Fed may be forced to raise rates more aggressively. We are currently holding the weighted average maturities in our portfolios on the short side, in anticipation of higher rates ahead and as a hedge against more aggressive tightening. We see little value in the long end of the short-term curve at the moment. Currently, we are increasing our exposure to floating rate securities which should perform well as rates rise gradually over the coming months.

As mentioned above, the FOMC will meet again on August 10, 2004. Economic statistics to watch in August are ISM Manufacturing (8/2), Employment Report (8/6), Retail Sales (8/12), Producer Price Index (8/13), Consumer Price Index (8/17), Durable Goods Orders (8/25), Existing Home Sales (8/24), Gross Domestic Product (GDP, 8/27), Consumer Confidence (8/31), and Chicago Purchasing Manager (8/31),

As of July 29, 2004, the Dow was down approximately 2.9 percent for the month (down 3.1 percent year to date), the NASDAQ was down 7.5 percent (down 5.4 percent year to date) and the S&P 500 was down 3.5 percent for the month (down 0.94 percent year to date).

Sector Review

U.S. Treasuries: The U.S. Treasury curve flattened again in July, as short-term rates rose and long-term rates dropped slightly. Greenspan's positive report on the economy and expectations for the Fed to hold its course for raising interest rates kept the Treasury market from rallying on disappointing economic data. Although economic statistics disappointed investors during the month, the general consensus is that the economy is holding steady on its path to recovery. At month-end, three-month bills were yielding 1.43 percent and six-month bills were yielding 1.75 percent. Two-year Treasuries yielded 2.68 percent, the five-year 3.70 percent and the 10-year 4.48 percent.

In our Treasury portfolios, we are keeping our weighted average maturities short in anticipation of higher rates going forward.

Repurchase Agreements: Overnight repurchase agreements (repo) started the month trading at 1.35 percent, dropped to a low of 1.22 percent and climbed to 1.33 percent at month-end. We expect repo to trade, on average, around the fed funds target rate of 1.25 percent until the next FOMC meeting, when we expect repo rates to rise to 1.50 percent

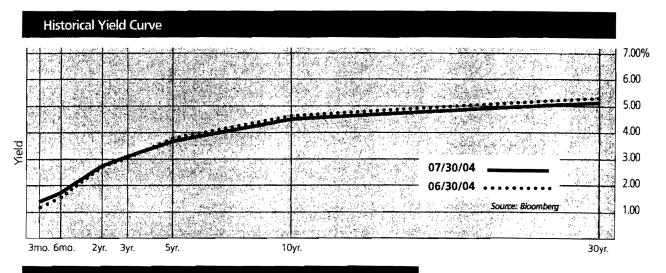

Commercial Paper: Rates on commercial paper have risen steadily since the beginning of April when it became clear the Fed would raise interest rates this year. We have targeted our weighted average maturities in the mid-to-high 40s as we enter the Fed tightening cycle. At the end of July, three-month commercial paper (top tier) was yielding 1.59 percent, six-month paper 1.84 percent and nine-month paper 2.04 percent.

U.S. Government Agencies: Discount note yields rose again in July along with other money market instruments. At the end of the month, discount notes were trading around 1.56 percent for three months with a pickup to 1.82 percent for six-month securities, 2.03 percent for nine-month securities and 2.28 percent for one-year securities.

As with our Treasury portfolios, we are keeping our agency portfolios short ahead of the next FOMC meeting.

Trolinger Investments

Sally Hunter Trolinger Estate County Court Cause No. OOP542 County Clerk Records Volume 401 Beginning Page 621

Various oil, gas and mineral royalty interests were willed to Tom Green County to be used for the Library of Tom Green County.

Only working interest is the Yates Field, which is continuing to produce positive cash flow.

These holdings will be held until such time as the Commissioners' Court deems it prudent to divest said holdings.

An itemized listing of Inventory will be included annually beginning with the January 2004 Treasurer's Report.
